SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE

Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, in this Bicentennial Year of the Constitution, notes that the First Amendment to the Constitution set up the wall of separation between church and state which has served as a guarantee for religious freedom and diversity in the United States, including that of the Jewish community.

We, therefore, resolve to develop educational materials and programs in our American Affairs Department promoting a deeper understanding of the significance of the constitutional principle of the separation of church and state and why it is in the best interest of the Jewish community as well as all religious groups.
