

Talli Dippold Bio

Talli Dippold is the Assistant Director of the Stan Greenspon Center for Peace and Social Justice and Director of Jewish Life at Queens University of Charlotte. Previously, she was the Executive Director of the Levine-Sklut Judaic Library & Resource Center at Shalom Park. Dippold received a BS in Hospitality Management from the University of New Hampshire. After many years in the hospitality industry she decided to change her focus and pursue her lifelong passion for Judaism and Holocaust studies.

During the past four years Dippold travelled extensively throughout Eastern Europe and participated in numerous educational opportunities including the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum Belfer Conference, The Prestigious Holocaust and Jewish Resistance Teachers Program, as well as the Hillel International Professionals' Heritage Study Tour in Poland. Dippold has been an active member of the North Carolina Council on the Holocaust since 2013. She is currently pursuing her Masters in Holocaust and Genocide Studies. Dippold is passionate about Jewish engagement; during her college years she was the president of her schools' Hillel and has taught Hebrew for many years.

Dippold is a native of Jerusalem. When she is not working, she enjoys spending time with her three active children and travelling.
